  - Patient Safety

Any new trends identified will be reported by the Medication Safety Officer at the October Patient Safety Committee meeting.

Dr. Prins explained that in the case of time outs, the time out and incision times cannot be the same (within the same minute).

The action plans for improvement in these areas were to remind the surgeons and staff of the proper protocols and for the auditors to provide clarification on the process of auditing.

Trustee Evaristo provided the following financial highlights as of September 2019:

- Gross revenues were at $178.8M as compared to $150M in 2018. The projected gross revenues was $180M by end of the year.
- The cash flow was $4.7M, compared to $1.2M last year.
- Net patient account receivables were up $18.5M, from $33M to $52M.
- Money owed to DRT was down to $4.4M, however, a decision was pending on the interest and penalties assessed.
- The contract for the independent audit was delayed but has since been resolved.
- The Office of the Attorney General’s assistance with collecting from self-pay patients contributed to a 30% increase in collections.

Other Discussion(s):
- Chairperson Obispo broached the subject of subcommittee reporting in future Board meetings. Although the status reports were very informative for each member, she requested for the subcommittee chairs and vice-chairpersons to reserve regular Board meetings for “high-level” matters that require the Board’s guidance or action.

Several Board members shared their experience with other Board meetings in which they were participants. It was mutually agreed that changes were needed in order to ensure more effective and efficient meetings.

The hospital will research best practices for hospital Boards and develop a proposal for the Board’s review and consideration.

- Discussions took place regarding the importance of branding and promoting the hospital using various online, social media and other platforms—tasks usually performed by a Marketing Department. The Human Resources Subcommittee was tasked with developing a Marketing Coordinator/Manager position.

GPD needs more info on Route 15 shootings

By Nick Delgado
nick@postguam.com

Investigators are nowhere closer to finding the suspects involved in the shootings reported along Route 15 in recent weeks.

However, the Guam Police Department does not believe the two shootings are related.

GPD spokesman Sgt. Paul Tapao confirmed police are conducting an injured person investigation into the second shooting reported in Yigo.

Tim Concepcion, 55, was about to head to work late Friday night when he was shot outside his home in Yigo, according to Concepcion’s family.

Concepcion was taken to Guam Regional Medical City where he was treated for a gunshot wound to his leg. Tapao said Dededo Precinct Command officers confirmed the victim sustained gunshot wounds but said the case has not been classified as a shooting.

Lawsuit: Former altar boy subjected to more than 100 acts of abuse

A former altar boy alleges he was "trained" to perform various sexual acts by a man who served as a supervisor of young altar servers at the Santa Guadalupe Church in Santa Rita.

A.C.Q., who filed using his initials to protect his identity, filed a civil lawsuit in the District Court of Guam against the Capuchin Franciscans and Pedro Quichaday.

The civil complaint alleges Quichaday sexually abused A.C.Q. over two years beginning when he was 10 years old in the 1990s.

The alleged abuse occurred at both the Santa Rita church premises and surrounding jungle.

The complaint alleges Quichaday "tired and enticed" the boy with offers of candies, fruits, sodas and other sunries.

A.C.Q. alleges he was subjected to sexual abuse on more than 100 occasions. He accused Quichaday of training him to perform various sexual acts on him.

The boy eventually distanced himself from Quichaday after he became "tired of the abuse," the lawsuit states.

Attorney David Lujan contends the Capuchin Franciscans participated in the assignment of Quichaday to serve the Archdiocese of Agana in Guam at the Santa Rita parish and is responsible and liable for the wrongful acts against the client.

The lawsuit seeks $5 million in damages. (Daily Post Staff)

Port board OKs draft deal with shipyard

By John O’Connor
john@postguam.com

The board of directors at the Port Authority of Guam has approved a draft memorandum of understanding with Guam Shipyard, which would allow the latter to perform in-kind services for the port in lieu of paying off its debts to the PAG.

"We're all aware the Guam Shipyard has been in active litigation with the Port for moneys it has owed the Port over the years," PAG General Manager Rolly Respicio said at Tuesday’s meeting with board members. "Instead of having them pay that, we're asking them to lend us services to remove the two gantry cranes and to remove the barge at F-6."

Respicio said approving the draft MOU could be considered a first step. With the board's approval, he can now ask the Port's legal counsel and the government of Guam chief procurement officer to determine if the draft and board approval is all that's needed, or if approval from the Legislature and governor is necessary.

Under the MOU, Guam Shipyard is to demolish and dispose of two inoperative ship-to-shore container cranes, or gantry cranes, and to lift, cut and dispose of the port's partially sunken barge in waters adjacent to the F-6 pier. A similar arrangement ended unsuccessfully in October 2016.

Instead, the Port issued a procurement for the barge removal. However, the project did not move forward because the scope of work did not include lifting the barge. Bids also were issued to demolish and remove the cranes but the winning company canceled.

"Three years later, these Port assets are now a liability and must be removed immediately. We maintain that the proposal submitted by Guam Shipyard is an innovative solution, which does not require any cash outlay," a memo from Respicio to the board stated.

But the amount of in-kind work would exceed the debt owed to the Port and so there must be some kind of reconciliation, according to Respicio.

The Port also is offering credits the shipyard can leverage against any future leases with the Port. The shipyard is amenable to a potential 75% credit, so it would not be dollar-for-dollar, Respicio said.

The Port did not disclose the estimated cost of in-kind work the shipyard would perform.

"We cannot and should not put those interests in the MOU because in the event this doesn't go through, this whole thing will go out for bid. And if it goes out for bid, having exposed their numbers, it puts them at an unfair advantage," Respicio said.

He loved me like a crazy. "I loved him since the first time I laid eyes on him in high school. Santos is asking all who know her to post any photos and videos of him on social media to keep his memory alive. "I just want everyone to remember all the good times we shared with him," she said. "He's very liked and very much loved. His kids love him so much."

His death marks the 10th traffic-related fatality this year.

Ignacio said.

The Guam Police Department has received numerous inquiries concerning this video and its contents and has inquired specifically as to the name of the alleged officer.

GPD is trying to determine when the incident occurred.

Ignacio confirmed that no officers have been placed on administrative leave since the department just initiated the investigation.

"Community members were providing tips to Guam Crime Stoppers and directly to GPD. We were able to identify the suspect through a photo lineup," said GPD spokesperson Sgt. Paul Tapao. "Our officers alongside our GPD officers assigned to the federal task force were able to locate Attia in the Dededo area."

Democrats draft impeachment charges

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - Democrats in the U.S. House of Representatives met on Saturday to prepare for what could be the final week of their months-old impeachment inquiry that has imperiled Donald Trump's presidency.

After emerging from an all-day closed door meeting, House Judiciary Committee Democratic lawmakers said they were still in the process of drafting formal charges, known as articles of impeachment, that the panel could recommend for a full House vote as early as Thursday.

Representative Jamie Raskin told reporters on Saturday evening that the committee had spent the day digesting information they received from the House Intelligence Committee and constitutional law scholars who testified before Congress on Wednesday. "So now we are in the process of putting the law and the facts together to begin to think about the next step," he said.

The lawmakers released a 55-page report on Saturday morning outlining what they see as the constitutional grounds on which articles of impeachment could be built.

Juliari, the report's Democratic chairman, Jerrold Nadler, said impeachment was the only way to hold the Republican president to account.

"President Trump abused his power, betrayed our national security, and corrupted our elections, all for personal gain," Nadler said in a statement. "The Constitution details only one remedy for this misconduct: impeachment.

"Now we have the task of focusing on what the exact articles might be," said Eric Swalwell, another Democratic lawmaker in the House Judiciary Committee, on his way out of Saturday's meeting.

The committee will hold a public hearing on Monday to consider evidence gathered in the inquiry.

Republicans have called for a full day of proceedings to examine their own evidence, including a 110-page report saying the inquiry had found no evidence of an impeachable offense.

On Friday, the White House told Nadler it would not take part in the panel's hearings and condemned the inquiry as "completely baseless." Nadler, in turn, expressed his disappointment: "The American people deserve answers from President Trump."

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, who led the Democrat in Congress, directed the committee to draw up the charges on Thursday after weeks of investigation into Trump's request that Ukraine investigate former Vice President Joe Biden, a leading contender for the Democratic nomination to become the president in the 2020 U.S. election. Passage of formal charges in the Democratic-led House, now seen as all but certain, would lead to a trial in the Senate on whether to remove Trump from office. The Republicans who control the Senate have shown little sign of supporting Trump's removal.

While Trump has refused to cooperate with the House probe, he has made clear his lawyers will mount a defense in a Senate trial.

The Judiciary Committee is focused on two possible articles of impeachment that would accuse the president of abuse of power in his dealings with Ukraine and obstruction of Congress for refusing to cooperate with investigating committees.

Democrats also need to settle the question of whether to draft a third article alleging obstruction of justice based on former Special Counsel Robert Mueller's report on the federal investigation of Russian interference in the 2016 presidential election.

"That's something that we'll decide this weekend," Representative Debbie Mucarsel-Powell told reporters on Friday.

The probe has focused on a July 25 telephone call in which Trump asked Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky to open an investigation into Biden and his son Hunter, and into a discredited coup plot promoted by Trump and his allies that Ukraine, not Russia, meddled in the 2016 election.

Hunter Biden joined the board of Ukraine energy company Burisma while his father was vice president. Trump has accused the Bidens of corruption. They have denied wrongdoing and the allegations have not been substantiated.

Trump's personal attorney, Rudy Giuliani, who traveled this week to Budapest and Kiev, said on Thursday that Americans would soon learn how Joe Biden had contributed to corruption in Ukraine.
